

Bobcats, Birds and Butterflies: Good Forestry is Good for Wildlife

With Sue Morse of Keeping Track

Date: Friday, October 7, 2016

Location: Huntington Public Library
2156 Main Rd
Huntington, VT

Program Starts: 7:00pm with refreshments at 6:45pm

This free program introduces a variety of wildlife detection and habitat assessment techniques, while also describing the positive outcomes of selected sustainable forest management practices. Sue Morse narrates a beautifully illustrated slide presentation that covers a range of species, from wood frogs to moose. Join us to learn about how forest management practices can stimulate more productive and diversified food and cover resources for the benefit of all wildlife.

Sponsored by: Vermont Coverts: Woodlands for Wildlife; Huntington Public Library, Huntington Conservation Commission and the Huntington Historical Community Trust
